Coordination of research team with national and international collaborations

Since 2002 he coordinates the research team on supply chain management, lean management and value engineering at the Laboratory of Engineering at the University of Udine. The team members are: ing. Marco Formentini (PhD University of Padova and researcher at City University Cass Business School, London), Eng. Thomas Bortolotti (PhD University of Bergamo and a research fellow at the University of Padua), Eng. Stefania Boscari (PhD candidate University of Padova), prof. Pamela Danish (ING-IND/35 researcher, University of Padova). At international level, the research team cooperates with the following institutions: Supply Chain Management Institute (University of San Diego, U.S., prof. Simon Croom), Warwick Business School (University of Warwick, UK, prof. Nigel Slack and prof. Mihalis Giannakis), Kelley School of Business (Indiana University, U.S., prof. Barbara Flynn), School of Management (Royal Holloway University of London, UK, prof. Alan Pilkington and dr. Luciano Ciravegna).

Experience as a supervisor of doctoral thesis research

Marco Formentini (University of Padova), 1/2009-3/2012

Thomas Bortolotti (University of Bergamo), 1/2009-5/2012

Stefania Boscari (University of Padova); 1/2012-in course

External Reviewer for the doctoral thesis of Dr. Silva Vahe Chemedikian, Doctoral School of Economics and Management, University of Padua, 11/2011
